3. Go to page 6; listen to the same audio clip as above.
4. Go to page 7; listen to the same audio clip as above.
5. Go to page 8; read the grammar explanations on the left side of the page.

Name: _____ Email: _____

7. Still on page 8, you now have to make an audio file similar to the page 8 audio file using your answers from part 6.

There are two ways you can send me an audio file.

To record your audio file in Windows:

- Click on START button at the bottom left of your desktop screen
- Click on programs / accessories / entertainment / sound recorder
- When you are ready to begin, click on the record button and recite your presentation
- You will have one minute before it stops, but you can redo it many times if necessary
- Click on File to save as NAME_COURSENAME (e.g. geraldcaronspanish11.wav)
- Always keep a copy of your work in Spanish 11 file on your computer

To record your audio file in FirstClass:

- Login into FirstClass
- Go to the 'Mailbox' and click on 'New' – this will open a new message window
- Write "YOUR NAME - Intro Spanish AA" in the subject line
- Type Summer School in the "To" field
- Click "Edit" from the file menu at the top of the screen, then click 'Insert' and choose "Insert Voice" – you will now see a voice recorder on your screen
- Click the "red recording dot" and begin recording your presentation
- When you are done recording, click on the "red square" to stop it
- To play it back, click on the "green play button"
- Each time you click on the "red dot" it creates a new recording - you can listen to each recording by clicking on "VoiceMsg.mp3". Delete the ones that you don't like, and only send one.

Note: Online translators or dictionaries can be used as tools, but only for individual words or small word groups. Too often, if you use online translators for complete texts, the results are disastrous and barely understandable.

If you have tried, but it seems too difficult, you may submit your audio file as a written document (using Microsoft Word or another word processor) and complete sentences.

You have reached the end of your Activation Assignment.
Ensure that all is complete and submit to activation@ebus.sd91.bc.ca or by fax to 1-250-567-5794.
